The moulin fondu's homeport

History

In 1994, under the initiative of the Compagnie Oposito and with the collaboration of the Gérard Philipe Cultural Centre of Noisy-le-Sec, the construction of a workspace is considered in the Paris region. The company's work was in phase with current developments in street arts. In 1991, professional street artists and institutions suggested that a structure be created for artists to elaborate their shows in suitably adapted premises. That is when the appellation "Place of Fabrication for Street Arts" was born. Following the agreement of the different institutional partners, the French Ministry for Culture, the General Council of Seine-Saint-Denis, the Regional Council of the Ile-de-France and of the City of Noisy-le-Sec, an old farm in the historic quarter of Noisy-le-Sec was rehabilitated. The Moulin Fondu was inaugurated on 7 January 1996.

Presentation

The Moulin Fondu, is 900 sq. m of original, functional and spacious premises, located in a historic district of Noisy-le-Sec near the town centre and just five minutes' walk from the train station. It houses a rehearsal room (200 sq. m) equipped with sound, a meeting room with video equipment, wardrobe, workshop, accommodation for up to six people, kitchen and bathroom.

Oposito's homeport

The repercussions of such a tool on our evolution are clear. Our team, writing and position in the network of modern and innovative cultural bodies have been strengthened. The multiple guest visits to and meetings at the Moulin Fondu, collective events, written and designed for "Rencontres d'Ici et d'Ailleurs", the countries and cities visited, all testify to the vitality of our itinerary and the quality of our creations.

The moulin fondu as residence

The place of fabrication, a shared tool

Our company has always put its workspace at the disposal of other artistic teams. It is an integral part of the way we work, a pretext for exchanges and mutual enrichment.

It was logical for our team to be associated with the conception and the setting up of places of fabrication for street arts as early as 1992. The creation of the Moulin Fondu has enabled us to develop our relationships to others in an exponential way. It has allowed us to provide a qualitative approach to residences in terms of comfort and support. About forty teams have benefited from this dynamic to date. These steps, often taken in association with other places of fabrication, have had qualitative results on our productions over recent seasons.

Our project is now going through a transitional phase.

It's a history in the making, in full evolution. After six years' experience at the Moulin Fondu, we have to reconsider the notion of our residence and fabrication space.

It is not about moving but extending the Moulin Fondu space and its project to the city of Noisy-le-Sec by building a complementary pole: the "Grand Moulin".

The projection of this extension will obviously be conducted by an artistic team responsible for its destiny and within the framework of an outward looking, space sharing policy at the service of other major or emerging artistic ventures.

Parade

Scenario, stage setting and scenography:
Oposito company
Musical Universe:
Michel Risse of the Décor Sonore company

In the last years, the Oposito's journeys took the company to Africa, from Ethiopia to South Africa. Subtlety and complexity were at the heart of the adventure. From reality to mirage, the strong emotional impact of those epics journeys will stay forever within the company. The kind of event that leaves you breathless, tumbles your spirit and feeds your senses.

The company brings back from there its parade, a tribute to the women and children of those countries.

The stage setting acts to give the images a sensation of visual, sound and olfactory successive mirages. The persons, the timeless nomads, with the clay faces, live in mirages, give them life.

They express themselves solo or in choir, build on the night border villages as rainbow. Together, they make you listen to songs of enjoyment, but also the thunder of the anger.

They do not stay, they are only passing by, from mirage to mirage, they cross the city.

Associating the game, the song, the music, the dance as well as the manipulation of objects, the interpreters evolve on a collective partition.

A co-production of Oposito and Décor Sonore

“ They are ten musical automatons dressed like soldiers, with heavy make up, smiling and wandering with large and curious loudspeakers hanging over their heads. In their midst, a gracious and fragile diva seems lost and searching. Dressed in a long 1900s robe, a heavy pearl necklace and a medusa like head piece made of 35mm film, she wanders about, her mind lost in her own thoughts. Her mysterious gestures seem to indicate a direction which the automatons accept as theirs. Sometimes chaos erupts, the automatons assail the diva or scatter in all directions. Not a word is said; simply an extremely surprising and complex score blaring out from each automaton’s loudspeaker: marching band, opera, waltz, animals cries, even disrupted telephone conversations. A fascinating procession during which the identity of the diva remains hidden while the attitudes and postures of the soldiers will leave many in awe. A bright and poetic event, a momentary and turbulent dream, a very curious story, a revelation which disappears without the obligatory salute in a rave of applaud.”

transhumance, l'heure du troupeau

A monumental parade in three acts and one concert for two hundred actor-musicians and their procession of iron animals

Script, direction and stage setting: Oposito.

Rhythmic creation: Métalovoice.

Orchestration, concert direction: Décor Sonore.

With the Bagad of Briec or of Plougastel. A parade is one of the signs most adapted to the language of crowds and open spaces. Its movement is built by successive apparitions. Its rhythm takes the public by surprise, knocking it sideways and from behind... to captivate it, lead it and embark it as an unconditional passenger into our dream.

We prepared ourselves for this adventure.

We created it to our measure with the best of the multiple relationships we have established over the last fifteen years.

“Transhumance, l'heure du troupeau”

is a show borne out of our experiences. It is inscribed in time, each leg feeding the next. Our journey started in 1997.

Today, after having crossed some twenty towns, one thousand eight hundred people will have interpreted our imaginary partition, allowing us to share our dream with over 150 000 spectators. “Transhumance, l'heure du troupeau” is an arch with no deluge, without Noah, an arch to harbour our dreams and act as rampart against indifference. It is a vessel with the emotions of olden days when man lived to the rhythm of the seasons.

“Transhumance, l'heure du troupeau” is a metaphor on transhumance. A great travelling dream crosses the city, pushing back the limits of the possible. An allegory, a homage to travellers, storytellers and other poets, a salute to the conquerors of the useless.

SPECTACLE

Made to measure events

Plastic art

installation

The Compagnie Oposito likes to explore different street art movements and formats. The monumental is one of them, a language that is well suited to traditional or modern collective ceremonies. It speaks to every inhabitant of the invested city.

THE CROWD IS A PERSON

To write a story for a city, taking in consideration its inhabitants. Taking into account its past, its present. Provoking modern day rituals. Elaborating a scenario that weaves its way into the life of the city, highlighting its hidden or forgotten aspects. Inventing legends where none existed. Drawing, constructing images that have no fear of space, noise, wind or storm. Finding the movement for the show that suits the crowd best. Experiencing the combined power of ten companies incarnating the same story. Entering stage in the light of the setting sun, exiting it in the moonlit ocean light.

The "Rencontres d'ici et d'Ailleurs" is an annual street theatre festival, presented by the Compagnie Oposito to its town and inhabitants.

Homeport for the company in town, the event essentially takes place outdoors. In ten years this initiative has become an event drawing an increasing number of spectators from the Paris region.

The companies present are invited to perform their work, and also to take part in the monumental show where all the different teams' skills are combined.

This moment, written and directed by the Oposito company, lends a specific and unique character to the event.

It is also the privileged place for shows created at the "Moulin Fondu" by visiting companies to meet the public for the first time.
